

I don't believe that there should be mandatory copy protection support on television devices. This artificially limits my right to make legal recordings of shows and the potential for new television-related technologies to deal with these public signals. If the broadcasters do not like this policy, they are certainly able to not broadcast over our public mediums.